Dutch colonists brought coffee to Indonesia in the 17th century, beginning a rich tradition. Today, there are 7,824 Fairtrade members of the cooperative called Koperasi Baitul Qiradh Baburrayyan (KBQB), located in Takengon and Bener Meriah. Small, family-owned farms (averaging 1 hectare) in 106 villages across 2 districts began farming coffee in the coop in 1995, with 90% of people in the area working in the coffee business. KBQB farmers and their ancestors have refined their understanding over hundreds of years of growing coffee. They are deeply familiar with all of the factors required to make a great cup of coffee, most importantly the earth, where it all begins.
