Los Pinos, a group of family farms that are certified organic, is located in Aranjuez, Matagalpa next to the Arenal reserve. The farms total 55 hectares of coffee (yielding 7 containers per year), led by Byron Corrales, a man of passion and a renowned personality in the Central American coffee community. After four generations, they have refined coffee growing and philosophy: that coffee production is an art, and that through it, they express their respect and solidarity, as a family to the world. Coffee is combined with areas of planted forest to improve water retention and agricultural products. They have comprehensive water management and fertilization systems.
